Cohort Experience Bundle

Being a Processwork Diplomat

- Recognize, appreciate and explore all aspects of experience – conscious and objective; unconscious or dreamlike; subtle and intangible atmospheres
- Use self-awareness techniques to work with one's own difficult states, moods, biases and emotions, areas of difficulty and personal edges
- Understand and work with conflict, edges, and challenges as resources for personal growth and change
- Value experiences, people and attitudes which are outside of one's identity as aspects of oneself
- Work confidently with issues that have strong emotional and social impact
- Provide deep democracy leadership and facilitation that supports all parts and all levels of our experience

SGD & the Cohort Experience

Student centered learning - tailored for your goals

Flexible so you can go at your own pace

Structured container so you can relax and focus

Intensive in person community learning opportunities for the magic, mystery, challenge and joy

Processwork Diploma Practitioner Training

- Personal development: fluidity with your core edges; access to your secondary processes, support to burn your wood and transform internalized oppressions
- Building your practitioner toolkit - intervention breadth and depth, observation/modelling/theory from expert practitioners; individual case specific theory and techniques
- Practice! Gaining experience and confidence while under supervision - applying your skills in real life complex solutions guided by expert support
- Making your original contribution: Diploma Final Project

Questions

- How much Processwork experience do I need?
- How long will it take me?
- Are there scholarships?
- Ok, so the Bundle is $7,995 per year but what other costs are involved?
- What if I can only do one residency instead of two?
